RE: Masks, ARMS (Aerospace Reflective Mitigation Screening), and required reading of ScottAlan.com

Dear Mr. President,

Congratulations on your election! Please know that I have delayed mailing this letter until your inauguration, as most of my previous emails and portal messages have been ignored. This lack of response is owned by your predecessor, my senators and congressman, the CEOs of most major airlines, the UN Secretary General, climate experts, and others. I wrote the Vice President about this matter via her Senate portals immediately before and after your election and have received no reply to date.

I emailed the tropical storm experts at Colorado State University last spring with my warning and reasoning for an extremely intense season. I would like to think they had already arrived at the same conclusion on their own, as temperatures were already rising. A month after my emails to them also received no reply, they announced their revised forecast, which has now proven out to be record setting.

In that you have grasped the immense importance of masks during this COVID-19 disaster, I should hope you will also recognize the urgent need for ARMS, which is a primary defense against impending and disastrous global warming effects. Stated another way, masks are not a cure, but can buy precious time for vaccines; likewise, ARMS can buy our atmosphere critical time for urgent healing from CO2 excesses.

Also, a similarity to early virus combat failures by experts is demonstrated by climate change scientists who suppress or ignore ARMS theory. While the medical community initially downplayed the effectiveness of masks (even today the CDC is correcting its guidance), climatologists are largely guilty of focusing solely on carbon reduction to the exclusion of the urgent and dire need for ARMS, now.

As if this isn't enough, we have just lost an opportunity to save both the airline industry and our climate at the same time. All of those idled planes, taxpayer money, and crucial time are mostly wasted, as airliners should have been dispensing soda lime. This is woefully reminiscent of parked school buses submerged in Katrina's flood waters, while families lacking transportation out, languished and perished.

Please be so kind as to assign your staff a quick read and evaluation of www.scottalan.com. I look forward to your corrective action to save our planet.
